Expression of Interest: Hello there, hope you're doing well.

It looks like you need to build 10 pages using HTML and CSS and JavaScript, I can offer to build those for you also with responsive design on all devices, I'm a frontend web developer with 3.5 years of experience and have completed 30+ projects just like yours for clients in the USA and Europe (you can check the reviews in my profile) and have made a website with similar interest for a public hospital you can check the website from here(website link for previous client), so I know how to make your website more attractive compared to other competitors and have also skills in SEO so I will build your website with Taking into consideration how important the performance is to help reach the website the first page in the search engine Which leads to save a lot of money later. I have also 2 years of experience in (Angular, React.js, Vue.js) but I would prefer to use React.js because it will help more if the client want to develop a mobile application later.

I provide a free 30-minute call to new clients to guide them and explore if they see value in working together.

Let me know if you'd like to chat.

Solution for the client Problem :

I suggest that we work in React Framework because it will easily enable the user to use the project on the phone and provide him with ease of use and speed in performance

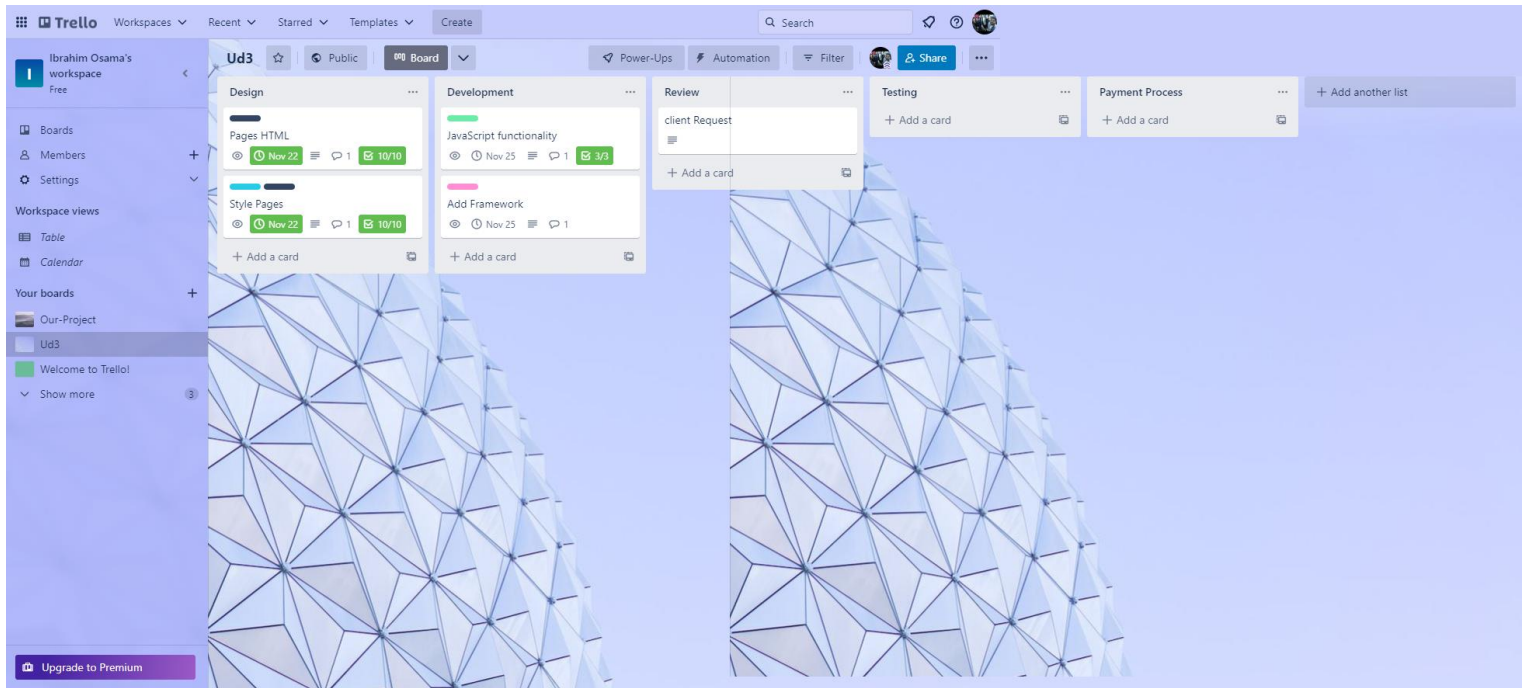

- Describe why the client should choose you/your solution
- Because of my great experience in the field of software, I can finish it in the best form and quality and in the least time, and I am open to discussing any modifications that the customer wants.
